ABSTRACT

This study aims to: (1) produce an android-based TOEIC Exercise application, (2) to find out the results of testing an Android-based TOEIC Exercise application. This research uses the R&D (Research and Development) research method by using the Protipe development model. The development procedure consists 5 stages, namely: (1) Needs Collection, (2) Building and Supporting Protipe, (3) System Testing. Data collection techniques in this study were through interviews and using a questionnaire administered to potential TOEIC participants to find out the responses regarding the application of TOEIC exercises. The data analysis technique used is based on testing its accordance with ISO 25010 standards. ISO 25010 consists of aspects of usability, functionality, reliability, and portability. The results of this study are in the form of an android-based TOEIC training application that has been validated by a validator. Based on expert validation, the Android-based TOEIC training application is feasible to use. Respondent responses to the Android-based TOEIC training application are in the very good category.
